FORMAL PRESENTATION: Compatriot David Schmitt briefed on the Union Major General William Henry Wilson and Brigadier General John T. Croxton's raid into central Alabama in the closing days of the Civil War. The raid started in northwest Alabama aimed at destroying all capabilities of the south to supporting the war effort. Specific targets were the series of iron foundries starting at present day Birmingham sweeping south towards Tuscaloosa and specifically the large Confederate naval shipyard and munitions plants at Selma on the Alabama River. From there, iron clad ram ships were produced and moved to Mobile. Selma was also the central point for the Trans-Mississippi to Richmond supply line to the AVN. A subset of the raid involved a brigade sent to Tuscaloosa to destroy the University of Alabama which was a military school supplying the Confederate Army with seven generals, 25 colonels, 14 lieutenant colonels, 21 majors, 125 captains, 273 staff and other commissioned officers, and 24 private soldiers.

The school and all the production capability in Tuscaloosa were destroyed to include blacksmith shops, cloth factories, niter plants, and a cannon barrel and ball plant. The presentation covered Gen Wilson's continued raid into Columbus GA days after the surrender at Appomattox.

His briefing was well received. Many questions and answers followed.

REFRESHMENTS were provided by Phil Tate.

BENEDICTION. Commander Kicklighter provided the closing prayer.

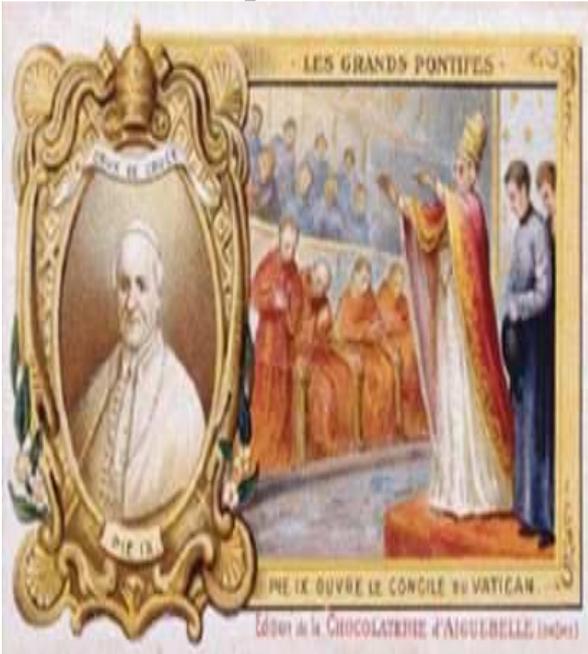

ADJOURNMENT. Meeting adjourned at 8:15 p.m.

NEXT MEETING. Tuesday, February 10, 2015, 6:30 p.m., same location. Compatriot Kevin Monroe will bring refreshments.

Respectfully submitted,

Pope Pius IX and the Confederacy

One of the most overlooked facts of the American Civil War Era is the sympathy the South gained from Europe's most influential monarch – the pope of Rome.

Pope Pius IX never actually signed any kind of alliance or 'statement of support' with the Confederate States of America, but to those who understand the nuance of papal protocol, what he did do was quite astonishing. He acknowledged President Jefferson Davis as the "Honorable President of the Confederate States of America."

From this we can glean three things about Pope Pius IX:

- a. He called Jefferson Davis by the customary title "Honorable."
- b. He acknowledged him as president of a nation.
- c. In doing so, he (at least on a personal level) recognized the Confederate States of America as a sovereign entity, apart from the United States of America.

News of this reached the North, and the White House was considerably irate about it, prompting a response from the Vatican that the pope's letter did not amount to an "official" recognition in the "formal sense." The pope's letter to Jefferson Davis was accompanied by an autographed picture of the pope.

There are many possible reasons why this pontiff would be sympathetic to the CSA and her president, but the most likely one was that Pope Pius IX recognized in the traditional Christian culture of the South, a mindset opposed to the advance of liberal Modernism. You see it was Pius IX who composed the famous "Syllabus of Errors," which condemned the Modernist philosophies of liberalism, humanism, secularism, and Marxism. It is speculated that Pius IX saw in the Confederacy a political movement steeped in European Christian tradition, and therefore a potential ally against liberal modernism on the North American continent. Alas, the Confederacy was ultimately defeated, and President Davis was captured. As the 'Deconstruction' of the South commenced, and Davis awaited his trial, it is understandable why the pope would be sympathetic.

Pope Pius IX was a revered figure in the post war South. General Robert E. Lee kept a portrait of him in his house, and referred to him as the South's only true friend during her time of need. Both Davis and Lee were Episcopalians, as were many Southerners before the War, a denomination which had many things in common with Catholicism before the 20th century influence of Modernism of course. Davis was frequently visited by Southern Catholic nuns during his imprisonment, who delivered messages for him and prayed for his release. He eventually was released, having never stood trial, on the grounds that he committed no real crime. It is believed the majority of justices on the U. S. Supreme Court at that time acknowledged the right of secession.

Southern Americans of today should take comfort knowing that the old Confederacy did have a European friend, and it just happened to be one of the most respected men in the world – not only a head of state, but also the leader of the world's largest Christian religion. The day will come when Pope Pius IX will be canonized as a Saint. He has already been beatified, which puts him well on his way. When that day comes, Southerners will have a special bragging right, not enjoyed by many nations even today. They will not only be able to boast of his sympathies during and after the great War, but they will also have in their collective possession a relic of the man – a handwritten letter and autographed photograph.

An 1863 letter from Jefferson Davis, president of the secessionist Confederate States, to Pope Pius IX is preserved in the Vatican Secret Archives. Historians said Davis' letter, filled with references to the Civil War, was a ploy to convince the pope to recognize the independence of the Confederacy and establish diplomatic relations. SQUAD EAST MEETING MINUTES ~ JANUARY 19, 2015 Muster (continued)

PROCEDURAL BUSINESS

NO OFFICIAL MEETING WAS HELD ON DECEMBER 15, 2014. Squad East held their annual Christmas event -- no meeting minutes to review.

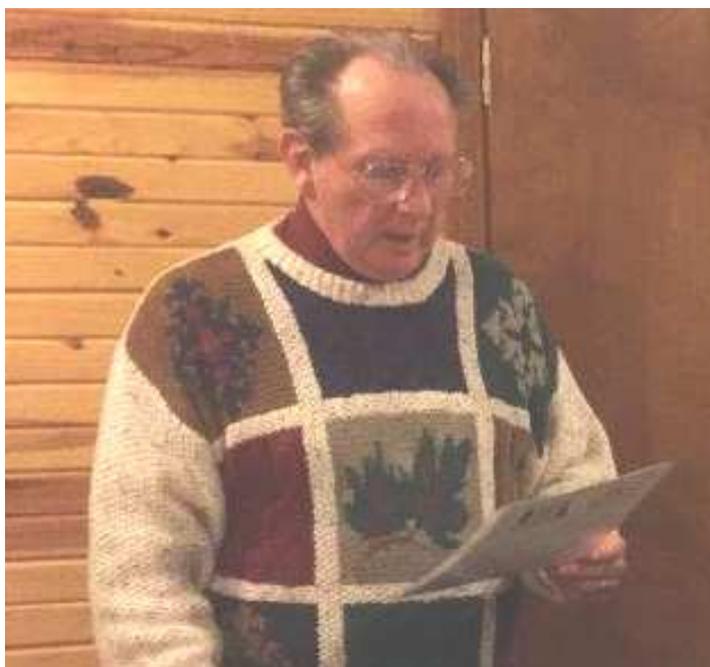

OLD BUSINESS.

- CAMP DIXON ANNUAL SPRING BALL (Gale Red). Petitioned those present to attend the Ball which is to take place March 28 in Belleville IL.
- UPCOMING PLANNED PROGRAMS (Vernon DeSelms). Reported future plans.

NEW BUSINESS.

- FUTURE PRESENTATIONS (Gale Red). Suggested members consider delivering a program on their own ancestors. This would add another level of connection of our group with the events that occurred more than 150 years ago.

FORMAL PRESENTATION was on "The Flight of Jefferson Davis" in the final days of the Civil War by Gale Red.

The presentation was about the flight of Confederate President Jefferson Davis from Richmond as the Confederate capitol fell to the Union Army. Davis was accompanied by his family, the Confederate Cabinet and some of their family members, over three brigades of Confederate Cavalry. They took with them much of the documents of the Confederate Government and the Confederate treasury. What they couldn't take was burned. They left Richmond late in the night of April 2nd 1865 by two trains and went to Danville, Virginia where they stayed for almost a week before continuing on to Greensboro and Charlotte NC before proceeding on to Greenwood and Abbeville, SC, and onto to Washington GA where on May 5th the Confederate Government was formally dissolved. Davis and a much smaller band continued on South toward Florida hoping to escape eventually to Texas to try to meet up with Gen. E. Kirby Smith to continue the fight.

After five weeks on the road, President Davis, his family, several Cabinet members, and the men of the escort were captured by troopers of the 4th Michigan Cavalry. President Davis and his family were taken to Fort Monroe VA where Davis would spend the next two years in prison before finally being freed without ever having been tried for anything. The briefing ended with a recap of the men who served as the final escort for President Davis on his attempt to escape. All of them were also captured and spent some time in jail also before being freed. This adventure was part of the story of the final days of the Confederacy.

BENEDICTION. Chaplain Sam Booth provided the closing prayer.

ADJOURNMENT. Meeting adjourned at 8:15 p.m.

NEXT MEETING. Monday, February 16, 2015, 6:30 p.m., same location. PRESENTATION: "The Most Senior Confederate Officer, General Samuel Cooper" by Gale Red.

Respectfully submitted,

Robert N. Marley
Squad Sergeant

Presentation to Rhode Island Civil War Roundtable

(January 21, 2015, Cranston RI) Compatriot Jacob “Talley” Bailey (left) was the program speaker at the Rhode Island Civil War Roundtable monthly meeting where 35 people attended. Posing with him is Mark Dunkelman, the President of the Roundtable. Talley’s evening topic was one dear to his heart--his book, Shadow Soldiers of the Confederacy: The Story of the Coleman Scouts: Behind the Line Heroes of the Confederate States of America in Middle Tennessee 1862-1865.

Living History Presentation in Smithton IL

(January 23, 2015) Commander Johnny Kicklighter and Adjutant Gale Red enjoyed delivering an outstanding living history presentation on what the War Between the States was all about to the fourth-grade students of the Smithton Consolidated School. Their presentation also discussed who was on each side and where the war was fought. Johnny and Gale also briefly talked about the Confederate Submarine, the CSS Hunley, and how the Confederate Navy took the fight around the world.

The children were very attentive and seemed to enjoy the program. A takeaway from a 10-year-old Matthew Kicklighter, the Commander’s grandson and one of the fourth-graders, raved about the event and said “it was fun and they talked about girls and guns.”

BRIAN GARNER, 49, of Vandalia IL, passed away at 9:34 p.m. on Saturday, Jan. 3, 2015, at Fayette County Hospital in Vandalia. A Memorial Mass was celebrated on January 9, 2015 at Mother of Dolors Catholic Church in Vandalia. Revs. Joseph Havrilka and Barry Harmon officiated. Brian had been cremated.

Brian was born March 26, 1965 in Salem, the son of Marvin and Virginia "Ginny" (nee Lee) Garner. He was preceded in death by his father, Marvin Garner, and is survived by his mother, Ginny Garner; paternal grandmother, Faye Garner of Metropolis; uncles, aunts, and various extended family members.

Brian was a respiratory therapist at Utlaut Memorial Hospital in Greenville, St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Belleville, and a former employee of Salem Wal-Mart. He was a member of Mother of Dolors Catholic Church, Knights of Columbus Council 4630 in Vandalia, Civil War Reenactment Groups (81st IL, 15th AR, and 22nd NC) and Fayette County and Marion County Genealogical Societies.

Brian will be remembered as a special gentleman who was a friend to everyone he met, kind and generous to a fault, good-humored, very intelligent and well read, plus a loyal supporter of Confederate and Union events. He was a former Chairman of the Lincoln Liberty Ball held in Vandalia every February where attendees bonded instant friendships. Our deepest sympathy to his mother and family. Burial will be in Antioch Cemetery in Salem at a later date. In a couple months, when weather permits, Ginny requests a special memorial be held by his affiliations and Camp Dixon.
